PHILADELPHIA,

MONDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 24.

TO THE
LEGISLATURE of PENNSYLVANIA.

GENTLEMEN,

A young man who lodged in 3d, near Walnut-street, that was in the service of Mr. Clemens, whose business led him among the vessels and wharves, was attacked the 30th of July, and died the Saturday following.

One of the crew of the Deborah also died in Race, near Fourth-street, under the care of Dr. Keimly.

The Marquis De Rouvray, who came passenger in her, died on the 23d of July—and a boy, belonging to her, a few days after.

The Consulting Physician of the Port mentioned to the College of Physicians, that one of the crew of the Deborah died at the Marine Hospital, and that while the ship performed quarantine, she had been frequently washed, aired and lime washed; and every particular had been complied with that the law directs—Hence the law, and not the officers, has, in the present instance, been in fault.

In less than a week after the desolating malady first appeared at Thompson's and Philips's, a considerable portion of the neighbourhood became infected. The majority of these were apprentice lads and merchants' clerks, occupied in stores and warehouses in that neighbourhood.

Dr. Dorsey also visited a boy named Dagget, ill of the fever, on board the schooner John from Boston, in that neighbourhood, on the 25th or 26th of July; from whom Mr. Lloyd and his apprentice John Saunders appear to have received the contagion, as they were both on board at the time of his illness, and sickened early in August.

Three mariners on board a ship (Nannings, master) from Hamburg, a little lower down, were attacked with the fever on the 29th of July—and the mate and one more, two or three days after. Dr. Currie attended all these till the ship weighed anchor and left the port.

The Deborah was towed up to Kensington on the 28th of July, and fastened to George Eyes's wharf, nearly opposite the middle of that village, where she remained till the 8th of August.

It appears from the accounts collected by Dr. Daniel De Beneville, residing in Kensington, and communicated by letter to Dr. Griffitts, that Joseph Strecton, the first person that had the Yellow Fever at Kensington, had been on board the Deborah on the 21st of July, while she lay at a wharf in the city,—was taken sick on the 29th, and died the 3d of August. James Porter, an apprentice to Joseph Grice, who lived next door to Strecton, was taken sick on the 1st of August, and died on the 12th. James Ashmore, an apprentice to William Yard, ship carpenter, who lived nearly opposite to the wharf where the ship lay, and who had worked on board while she lay in the city, was taken ill on the 2d of August, and died on the 15th.

James Kerr, George Adams, and a lad named Simons, all fellow apprentices with James Ashmore, and had also worked on board the Deborah, were all three taken sick a few days after James Ashmore, and all recovered.

Two labouring men of the name of Sutton, that worked on board the Deborah, were taken sick the 3d of August; one recovered, the other died.

Samuel Baker, whose house is nearly opposite the wharf already mentioned, was taken sick the 3d of August, and recovered.

Dr. De Beneville, who resides near Samuel Baker's, was taken with the fever on the 5th of August, and his wife and house-keeper on the 7th, the latter of whom died.

Joshua Baker, son of Samuel Baker, was taken with the fever on the 7th of August, and died on the 15th. Samuel Baker's wife was taken ill on the 12th of August, and died on the 22d.

Jane Newman and many others in the neighborhood of the wharf where the Deborah lay, also took the disease and it gradually spread by contagion over the whole village; which, before the arrival of the Deborah was (as it usually is in the summer season) remarkably healthy.

The subsequent appearance of the disease in Chester, Marcus-Hook and Wilmington, and the escape of Baltimore and of all the sea-ports to the southward of Baltimore, also afford the most incontestible argument that the disease was not derived from domestic causes, but from imported contagion.

That fibrile contagion may be retained in an active state many weeks, not only in the clothing of persons that have had the fever, but in the bulks and timbers of vessels we have the testimony of the most correct observers.

Dr. Mead relates that a sack of infected cotton, imported into Bermudas in the year 1695, gave origin to a fever so malignant, that the living scarcely sufficed to bury the dead—and that the imprisoned seeds of the plague which depopulated and destroyed nearly 60,000 of the inhabitants of Marseilles in the year 1720, made their escape from a sailor's bundle, lately arrived from one of the ports of the Levant. The plague which proved so destructive in London in the year 1665, described by Dr. Hodges was traced to importation from Holland where it had prevailed for two years before its introduction into London—Historians ascribe its introduction into Holland from some of the ports of Egypt.

It appears from the statement given by Dr. P. Russell, that a vessel on board of which some of the crew had died, introduced the plague into Messina in the year 1743, though there was not a sick person on board at the time of her arrival.

To pretend in America that a disease exciting the most malignant effects is not contagious is inconsistent with facts which have come under the notice of thousands, and would be an outrage upon common sense, and if such an opinion has prevailed, I expect it has been dissipated by the woeful conviction of very late experience.

To the REGIMENTAL SURGEON.

SIR,

AS you have undertaken to enlighten the Legislature of this State, upon the subject of the Yellow Fever, and have attempted to prove that it is always imported, I beg you will permit one who has had the misfortune to be much among it—to have experienced more than once its cruel attacks, and who has thought much upon the subject of its origin; to give you a little advice.

When a writer attempts to impose his opinions or assertions upon the world; and especially, when he undertakes to instruct a legislative body, it is to be supposed that he has something new to communicate; but fact with regard to your publication yesterday in this gazette, is, that the single sentiment or observation which has before been repeatedly urged by those support the doctrine of importation, which has not been as repeatedly confuted. Your piece is indeed, little more than a literal transcript of one which appeared in Porcupine's Gazette of last summer, signed "A Citizen," and which no one answered, as it was anonymous; and contained nothing but assertion. Your barefaced plagiarism convinces me you have never seen the dissertation question; and moreover, I believe I am strictly safe in asserting, that no Regimental Surgeon of the United States Army has ever seen the Yellow Fever in this city; the members of the Legislature will therefore judge, how much weight ought to be connected with the positive assertions of a man who writes upon an important disease of which he knows nothing, and contradicts the observations of distinguished physicians who have stood the siege every time it has prevailed in this city since 1793, and whom mature observation has convinced, that it is only a higher grade of bilious fever, and the consequence of the immense mass of exhalation, with which all our great cities, and especially Philadelphia, abounds.

Further, Sir, your publication, feeble as it actually is, in argument, may do essential mischief among those citizens, (whose want of medical knowledge will prevent them from perceiving its futility) by favoring the prejudices they have unhappily imbibed in favor of the importation of the disease, but which are daily wearing away, and may tend to prevent them from seconding and supporting the means for preventing the domestic sources of the disease, the propriety of which both parties are agreed in, viz. the plentiful supply of running water in our city.

The two medical institutions in this city, it is well known are decidedly opposed in sentiment upon this subject. The College think that the disease is always imported, and that a quarantine properly enforced will always secure health to the city; while the Academy of Medicine, are of opinion, it may be both generated here and imported, and that therefore it is as essential to have the streets and sewers well washed in summer, and the immense sources of exhalation in and about our city removed, as to oblige vessels to perform quarantine. The members of both these bodies, have probably seen an equal share of the disease; and therefore the legislature will do well to attend to the opinions of both, and guard against the disease from foreign and domestic sources: The Corporation of our city, in their memorial to the Legislature, declared their opinion of the importance of a plentiful supply of fresh water to the health of the inhabitants, and the citizens at large coincide with them. How absurd therefore, how criminal is it to weaken their confidence in its efficacy by the publication of your stale opinions, and to distract the public mind by the untenable assertion that the fever is always imported? In God's name what injury will the admission of the opposite doctrine do? The argument of its hurting the character of our climate, is too ridiculous to merit a moment's consideration; on the contrary what immense, what incalculable advantages will not attend the means recommended by those who believe the fever can originate among us, as well as be imported: The alleys and back yards will be kept clean as well as the main streets, from which the inoffensive dust is so carefully scraped during the summer; our abominable common sewers will be washed with a stream of water, which will carry all their offensive contents to the river, which now exhale through the city; that pestiferous place Water-street will be carefully attended to, the extensive collections from all our privies which are deposited upon our commons will be prevented: the large stagnant ponds in the suburbs, the receptacle of every dead animal and vegetable matter will be filled up: the numerous docks, which present extensive surfaces to the action of a vertical sun for several hours will be cleansed or filled up; we shall have plenty of good water to drink from the limpid Schuylkill, instead of that which we now use, and which is so polluted by the exhalations from our privies. In short, WE SHALL BE HEALTHY.

As the Legislature are in possession of all the information which the Academy and College of Physicians are able to communicate, and as you must be convinced, you know nothing of the subject of which you are writing; I leave it to your own judgment, whether you had not better suppress your lucubrations.

MEDICUS.

HALIFAX, (N. S.) December 10.

We hear from Raleigh, that Gen. Wm. R. Davie, is elected Governor of the state.

Mr. Wm. White. of Lenoir county, is elected Secretary of State, in the room of Mr. James Glasgow, resigned.

WALPOLE. December 3.

Carnot, once a Director of France, is now in obscurity at Linta, and writing with great zeal and preseverance, Memoirs of the Revolution. The mind of a Frenchman is always in a state of ebullition. When he is interdicted from the use of the dagger he seizes the pen. The motto of this work may be "quorum pars fui," and when the author narrates the irruption into the palace, the massacres of September, or the labours of the guillotine, he must talk like a man well acquainted with his subject.

The celebrated M. Lally Tollendal, a real French gentleman, a real politician, and therefore an adherent to the old government of his country, has, in a pamphlet entitled "A Defence of the Emigrants," drawn a picturesque contra between the state of the nation under Louis in 1798, and under five persons, who now pretend to exercise power. This picture clearly shews that nothing has been gained, but every thing lost, by the revolution.

A very insolent letter has been transmitted to Mr. Pickering, from the Jacobin Johnston, of Prince Edward county, who it may be remembered, lately addressed to the department of state a factious memorial. This letter concludes in the following crazy, intemperate, impudent manner, "You set up a claim to an exclusive priviledge of indecorum. A claim, which will be readily yielded to you, when it is recollected that insolence and moroseness of manners are your strongest characteristics: and neither charity or envy will deny you the enjoyment of the only distinction, which is within the reach of your talents."—

NEW-YORK. December 22.

A member of the French Convention has had the boldness to assert—that seven eights of the prizes taken by the cruisers of the Terrible Republic, have been Neutrals—and that France would severely suffer by such absurd policy.—We did not think there was as much reason and honesty in that infatuated country. But disaster makes people sober and rational.

Honors cluster thick around the brow of Dr. L——. Public gratitude seems eager to reward his generous ardor to compose our differences with France. Quere. Were we governed by the spirit of a French Directory, would he not long-ago have received much higher honors? The moment he set his foot on American ground after such a suspicious embassy, would he not have been elevated to a lamp post? In all the circumstances of this transaction could any man have committed a greater insult on the established authorities? We have heard however the first distant murmurings of the thunder—perhaps we may ere long see its tremendous lightning fall.

There is as much baseness in flattering a multitude, as an individual. What then are we to think of the Aurora, which is eternally add essing the people in contradistinction from the government, thus: The majesty—the sovereignty—the omnipotence of the people. The mob sycophancy is as despicable as any court flattery.

Four months ago the anxiety on the subject of French insults was universal. Although we did not tremble at the prospect of an open rupture with that haughty republic, yet it gave us uneasiness. We feared her daring boldness, unchecked by any moral restraints, and we were ignorant of her own strength and resources. Now though we regret that negociation has failed, and all hope of accommodation is vanished—we feel our situation so vastly different—that her demand of tribute and her menaces of subjugation, we hear without one vibration of fear—or rather with ineffable contempt.

The disadvantage of the loss of reputation for integrity, was never more visible than on a late occasion. The Aurora, as is very common with that vehicle of impudent falsehoods, published a letter which not withstanding the strongest asseveration—could gain belief with no one but those who wished to be deceived.

We are anxious to learn the result of the Vermont election. Judge Chipman has declined being a candidate, and the Federalists will make a powerful exertion to elect Mr. Williams; but Lyon's adherents are still numerous. It is said, several thousand signers have been obtained to petitions to the President, to shorten his imprisonment, and remit his fine!! which if not done, will be paid by the petitioners.

"The Maritime Power of Albion is the only barrier to unlimited domination on the part of the Five Headed Monster. The ancient poets had an idea that three heads were sufficient for the Cerberus of the infernal regions Had they have lived to the present day, the real existence of a Five-Headed-Beast, would have superceded fiction, and the French Directory have taken the place of the old, surly mastiff, at the Portlands of Pluto,

RICHMOND, December 13.

The hon. Henry Tazewell was yesterday re elected a Senator in Congress, by joint ballot of both houses of the General Assembly of this state.—A report of eighteen months standing, which Mr. Tazewell had denied, and which had lain dormant for so long a time, was quoted against him.—It was proposed to postpone the election, until the 1st day of January next: but a majority of sixty-eight to fifty three decided against the postponement.

The return of Bustletown, at the Election held on Friday last, was for Muhlenburg 82, for Logan 45—reducing the whole majority of the latter to 487.

The honorable Henry Tazewell has been re-elected a senator in congress, by the general assembly of Virginia.

OPINIONS OF GILES,

"A state of things may exist between two nations in which Reprisal not only becomes the right but the duty of the nation sustaining the wrong. This happens when one nation without cause forcibly seizes upon the effects of another, or of its citizens, and withholds them without restitution or compensation; and when the nation whose effects shall be so seized and detained, shall possess no other means of indemnification. The right of reprisal in the injured nation, in such a case, grows out of the injury sustained, and its inability to redress itself in any other way. The duty of the injured nation to make reprisals, is founded upon self-preservation, and in case of the losses of its citizens, upon the promise of the protection of the property, sacredly made by the nation to its individual members."

"A regard for peace has been construed into a fear of war. Submission to aggression has invited new aggression; appeals for justice have been deemed testimonies of debility, till at length the United States, after having been stripped of their citizens and property, are upon the eve of war, because they have not exerted their rights at an earlier period. If this conduct has been heretofore wise and pacific, experience has taught us that it is no longer so: nothing can be expected from the justice, moderation or honor of a government, which has proved itself equally a stranger to them all—but, before such a tribunal, acquiescence begets injuries, injuries beget insults, and insults will beget contempt, degradation and war."

MR. FENNO,

THE remarkable contrast between the Aurora and the other city papers in respect to advertisements, is well worthy of notice.—It explains in the most forcible language the cause of the political heresies and falsehoods, with which the former constantly teems.

In that vehicle of sedition, on the 22d inst. twenty one insolvent debtors gave notice to their creditors, that they had applied for the benefit of the act, provided for such persons. In the same paper there were only three vessels advertised;—whereas the other city papers are crouded with advertisements of merchandize for sale, and vessels for freight; but they contain very few, if any, notifications of the former kind.

From this display of the embarrassed situation of the Aurora's patrons, (and I presume they are almost all similarly situated) it is but reasonable to suppose that revolutions would better suit their circumstances than regular government.

SHREDS AND REMNANTS.

The cant word, Bore, which is so current among cockneys and coxcombs, is not, as is generally supposed, the quaint invention of the present day. In Shakespear's Henry VIII. the Duke of Buckingham, describing the malice and threatening looks of Cardinal Wolsey, proceeds thus,

——"I read in his looks,
"Matter against me; and his eye reco[il]'d
"Me, as his abject object; at this instant
"He bores me with some trick"

In the course of our literary labors, we find occasion, from the works of old authors to make the following political applications.

PRESIDENT of the UNITED STATES.

I am as constant as the northern star,
Of whose true, fixt, and resting quality
There is no fellow in the firmament,
The skies are painted with unnumber'd sparks,
They are all fire, and every one doth shine;
But there's but one in all doth hold his place;
So, in the world; 'tis furnished well with men,
Yet in the number, I do know but one
That, unassailed, holds on his rank,
Unshak'd of motion; and, that I am he,
Let me a little shew it, even in this;
That I am constant, Frenchmen are our foes,
And constant will remain to think them so.

Mr. JEFFERSON.

By breeding sharp, by nature confident.
Interest in all his actions is discerned; [learn'd.

When you speak best unto the purpose, it is not worth the wagging of your beards: and your beards deserve not so honorable a grave, as to stuff a botcher's cushion, or to be entomb'd in an ass's pack saddle. Yet you must be saying A—s is proud, who in a cheap estimation is worth all your predecessors, since Deucalion. More of your conversation would infect the brain. You are the herdsmen of the beastly plebeians.

VARNUM.

Why he ruminates like an hostess, that hath no arithmetic but her brain to set down her reckoning; bites his lip with a political regard, as who should say—there were wit in this head, an 'twould out.

A HALF FEDERALIST.

And follows but for form,

FRANCE.

The vine leaves in that country all are wither'd;
The pale fac'd moon looks bloody on the earth,
And lean look'd prophets whisper fearful change;
Rich men look sad, and Russians dance and leap.
Her sun sets weeping in the lowly west;
Witnessing storms to come, woe, and unrest.

A COMPARATIVE ESSAY
ON
France and the United States of N. America
With regard to their Soil, Climate Productions, Inhabitants, Constitution, and progressive Formation.

[BY E. A. W. ZIMMERMAN]

The author of this work having heard it argued in a numerous meeting, that the revolution of France was occasioned by the same cause, and had the same tendency with that of America, was so strongly affected with a conviction of the falshood and dangerous consequences of such an opinion; that he engaged to oppose it in print. The extent of researches necessary for the accomplishment of his engagement required the labour of several years; and the book before us constitutes the first volume of his undertaking.

Mr Zimmerman endeavours to shew the diffimilitude of the two revolutions in their causes and consequences, and derives his proofs from two sources; the description of the countries, and that of their inhabitants. In a former work, which has been twice printed in German, and of which a first volumn appeared at Cassel in 1784, in French, intitled "Zoologie Geographique," the author had rendered himself familiar with inquiries into the nature of countries; and he has availed himself of the authorities, to establish his facts in the present publication according to the same method. With regard to that part of his work which relates to men considered as the inhabitants of a peculiar district, his reasoning is established on the position that this animal, like every other, is subject to the influence of climate and different physical causes, as well as those moral energies of which the influence has never been doubted, and that the human character, with all its effects, is derived from these sources.

A simple history of the two nations, would not have accomplished the aim of the writer; but it was indispensably necessary that he should apply to the best historical documents, in order to develope the distinctive signs of national character; at the same time that the geographical structure, and the actual political situation of the countries, were objects of attention in the deduction of his results. Concerning those general results, it will be impossible for us to speak until the whole work shall have been published. The author, however enumerates the following in his preface, as peculiarly entitled to the attention of his readers.

"1. From the most remote times to the present age, the character of the French nation has been constantly the same, as well with regard to its good as its bad qualities. The several degrees of cultivation, to which it has arrived, have not altered its primitive impression.

2. This nation has displayed at least as much courage during its obedience to its kings, as during its new ephemeral form of government.

3 Under its kings, Conquest was never rendered disgraceful by a regular and profound combination of robbery, even in the country of their real enemies; and still less did their armies march attended by legions of the greedy agents of exaction, and cestors* who are solely occupied in robbing those states, with which they were in profound peace of such objects as procured the greatest advantages to the latter classes of people, while they had the impudence to speak of nothing in public but their liberty and their happiness.

4. Among all the kings of France, there is one only, namely Lewis XI. whose reign affords events in some respects similar to those which characterise the present soi-disant republic.

* The author refers to the 80th and 81st sections, chap. 29 of Cicero's Oration pro Roscio, to shew what kind of men these were.

CONGRESS.

The Senate of the United States, this day, commenced the trial of the impeachment of William Blount. The managers on behalf of the House of Representatives, in order to give due form and solemnity to the proceeding, requested, that the counsel who appeared in behalf of the defendant, should be called to enter upon the record of the court, the authority upon which they acted. Accordingly, Mr. Dallas, one of the counsel delivered to the hon. Mr. Lawrence, president of the court, two letters from Mr. Blount, containing authority for them to act as his counsel. A rule of the Senate having passed, that all decisions in this court, should be taken with closed doors, the galleries were thereupon cleared.

The House of Representatives of the United States this day, adjourned to Wednesday.

Gazette Marine List.

Boston, Dec. 13.

On Monday night, and Tuesday morning last, a large ship, with a figure head was seen off Cape Cod, under jury masts, with sails set, supposed to be making for land.

The sch. Jerusha, Voakes, from Surrinam went on Lynn Beach, in the late storm but it is probable she will be got off without any material damage. Capt. V. has arrived in town, and politely favoured us with the following.—Capt. Joseph Bragdon, in sch. Eliza, of Newbury Port, from Scarborough, arrived 27th Oct. month of Surrinam river, and proceeded from thence to Berbice. Capt. B. informed, that he spoke sloop Rebecca, of Bristol, from New-London, with horses on board, bound to Berbice, 61 days out who in lat. 5, 30, N. had lost her captain over board. The Rebecca had but half hhd. water on board, when spoken by capt. B.—Left at Surrinam, snow Susan, Bowler, of Providence, to sail in 8 or 10 days; brig Fair American, Forest, of Philadelphia; Three Friends, Endicott, of Salem; schooners Ruby, Rhodes, for Charleston; Defiance, Clinton, of New-York. Sailed in company, the sloop Endeavour, Miller, for Portland.

In the storm on Sunday evening last a schr. of Portland, about 100 tons burthen loaded with pitch, tar, tobacco, &c. from North Carolina, was cast away on a beach near Sandy Bay, (Cape Ann) and by the exertions of the inhabitants, the people on board were saved, and it is probable some of the cargo may be—vessel gone to pieces.

RICKETT'S CIRCUS.

MR. RICKETT'S,

WITH the most sincere respect, acquaints his friends and the public, that he has returned to Philadelphia, and will open his CIRCUS in Chesnut-Street, next Wednesday evening, with a variety of NEW PERFORMANCES, some of which he selected during his tour through Canada, &c. Amongst which are, a just representation of

An INDIAN-SCALP-DANCE

Which he acquired from the chiefs of the Seven Nations at Ochnawaga.

A GRAND CAVALCADE,

Consisting of Warriors in the dresses of the different nations of Asia, Africa, Europe and America.

The exercise of the
BROAD SWORD,

In which he will introduce the GUARDS of each nation, and also a new AMERICAN GUARD mounted on the charger Cornplanter.

A representation of
REAL ACTION,

Together with a number of extraordinary feats of Horsemanship, Stage Performances, Songs, Dances, and other agreeable entertainments, which he will not at present pretend to particularise, as he hopes by his exertion to render real satisfaction, and merit a continuance of that generous approbation and support which he so often experienced in this city, and for which he will ever feel the deepest sense of gratitude.

In the course of the evening there will be displayed several ludicrous scenes, in one of which Mr. R. will appear in a Canada Winter Dress.

The whole to conclude with Ba'tiste going to the Election at St Laurans.

N B The Circus has undergone a complete repair and is furnished with stoves that must render it extremely comfortable.

 The doors will be open at six—the performance to commence precisely at seven o'clock.

Box, one dollar; Pit, half a dollar.

Tickets to be had at the Bar of Oellers' Hotel, and at the Ticket Office adjoining the Circus.

Beware of the Rascal!

THE Public in general, and the Book Binders in particular, throughout the United States, are cautioned against the deception of a gallows-looking, yellow-complectioned, black-haired fellow, who calls himself, JOHN HOLT, by trade a Book-Binder—by his actions, I judge him to be a JACOBIN. He yesterday secreted himself from the pursuit of his lawful creditors, although, the day before out of mere charity, I bailed him from prison, offered him the highest wages and constant employ, to enable him to do justice—he pledged his word, his honor to be industrious, to be faithfull to his benefactor—he has put himself beyond my reach for the present—he has added ingratitude to injustice.—In order, more effectually, to guard every person against his impositions for the future, I think it necessary to decribe him more minutely than above. He is about 5 feet 7 inches high; slender make—he is a profane swearer, a liar, a drunkard and a glutton. He was guilty of several acts of swindling before he left this town.

A CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.
JOHN A. SHAEFFER, of Philadelphia, who has for a few years past been in the southern States, has had the effrontery to draw several Bills of Exchange on Timothy Pickering, Esq. Secretary of State, and myself, and by that means has defrauded a number of persons of their money, deceiving them by an exhibition of letters and papers with the names affixed of divers public characters and reputable merchants highly [illegible] said Shaeffer; to one of these papers I find my name subscribed, but I do not know the man; these are villainous forgeries! To prevent further imposition, I have to request the printers of Newspapers in the United States to publish this for the benefit of their fellow-citizens. SAMUEL MEREDITH,

Valuable Property for Sale.
FOR SALE,
THAT well known Estate, called SHREWSBURR FARM, formerly the residence of General John Cadwaladar, situate on Sassafras River, in Kent county, Maryland—containing about 1900 acres of prime LAND, upwards of 500 of which are in woods. The Buildings are all excellent, and consist of a handsome Dwelling House, two large Barns with Cow houses, Stables for fifty horses, a spacious treading floor under cover, a granary, two Overseer's houses, two ranges of two story buildings for Negroes (one of them new and of brick), Corn houses a Smoak house, &c. &c.—The whole Estate being nearly surrounded by water, it requires but little fencing, and has a good Shad and Herring fishery. It is conveniently situated for both the Philadelphia and Baltimore markets, with two landings on a navigable river but a short sail from Baltimore. There is a large Peach, and two large Apple Orchards on the premises; also, a variety of excellent fruits of different kinds. The soil is mostly a rich loam.—The whole will be sold together or divided into smaller farms (for which the buildings are conveniently situated) as may suit the purhaser. The Stock on said Farm, consisting of Horses, Cattle, Sheep &c. will also be disposed of.—For further particulars apply to GEORGE HASTINGS on the premises, or to the subscriber, in Philadelphia.

AN EPIC POEM,
By Robert Southey; with notes.
"WE do not hesitate to declare our opinion that the poetical powers displayed in it are of a very superior kind—Conceptions more lofty and daring, sentiments more commanding, and language more energetic, will not easily be found;—nor does scarcely any part of it sink into languor, as the glow of feelings and genius animates the whole. The language is, for the most part, modelled on that of Milton; and not unfrequently, it has a strong relish of Shakespeare."
